

Upon Death of a Human Being.

There are 7 principles that make up a human being:

1.)The ATMA (or spirit). This is called the divine spark. It is composed of 3 permanent atoms. These sparks or 3 permanent atoms emerged from the “absolute unknowable source” during the big bang.

The 3 permanent atoms are the core of the human being and keep reincarnating until they are reabsorbed by the absolute unknowable source during the big crunch or end of universe.

2.)The Buddh (or spirit) is the 1st shell that surrounds the ATMA or 3 permanent atoms.

3.)The Manas or 3rd shell surrounds the Buddh or 2nd shell. The Manas are further divided into upper and lower classes.

4.)The Upper Manas are: The higher mind, The higher emotions and the higher life-force or pranas. In theosophy the ATMA, Buddh and Upper Manas are considered as Soul. The higher mind, emotions and life-force are considered the 4th principle in Theosophy.

5.)The Lower Manas are: The lower mind. The lower emotions and the lower life-force or “Pranas”. In Theosophy they are considered the 5th principle in man. The Manas are thus counted as

1.5 of the higher, and 1.5 of the lower. Together the upper 1.5 and the lower 1.5 Manas equals the “3rd, 4th and 5th principles” in man.

The Souls Journey in Flesh.

The Lower Manas; which consist of the lower mind, the lower emotions and the lower life-force or “pranas” are negative in charge. Upon the death of a human being these negative energies are recycled by mother nature so as to provide a new subconsciousness, physical body and “personality” for the reincarnating soul. As the baby grows up the personality develops brand new positive and negative traits that the returning soul uses to evolve itself spiritually. For example, the child might hate or love other children from different backgrounds. He might hate or love different cultures or lifestyles. Keep in mind that as we grow up we are subject to endless waves of negative thoughts, emotions and forces of nature. These forces of nature may include quakes, plagues, weather events, famines, wars or economic disasters. Add to these negative influences competition over resources, waves of religious and political conditioning; and the returning soul is challenged to hold on to a positive frame of reference.

NoteWell: Semyon Kirlian's photography of the human auras is “Lower Prana Life Energy”. These photos are not of heat, electricity, magnetism or kinetic energy. This lower Prana belongs specifically only to those processes that mankind calls life. For more details on this I refer the reader to the works of the Austrian Doctor Wilhelm Reich work on “orgone energy”. Also see the work of the British Biologist Rupert Sheldrake's Morphogenetic Fields, and Platos' Theory of Forms.

Note Well: because the Manas are divided they get counted as 2 principles even though they are only One. Think of it as a male and a female being both considered as human. The 2 is also one. And the one is also 2. Hence, in occult math we would say $2=1$, and $1=2$. This are a weird kind of occult math. But in normal math 2 does not equal one.

6.)The Etheric Physical Body is the “magnetism” the holds all the 6th and 7th principles atoms together. When a human dies this negatively charged energy is released back into the electromagnetic spectrum. For older souls who have evolved more than the common soul, this body can be highly manipulate and detached at will from the solid body. As long as the silver thread is attached to the solid body, death can not occur.

7.)The Solid Body (or Sthula Sarira) is the last of the 7 principles in man. At death it get recycled by nature.

The Astral Realm

During the Souls Journey in Flesh, and from the occult perspective, the astral is made up of the higher and lower mind, higher and lower emotions, and the higher and lower life-force. During reincarnation the astral realm can also be highly manipulated by those at a more advanced stage of evolution. After death the soul incorporates only the upper traits, or positive energies into its' history. The lower gets recycled by nature and karma. God will provide a new born baby the opportunities to address former negative choices that were made. For example, even Hitler will have an opportunity to make amends for all the millions he had murdered.

NoteWell: In theosophy, the higher and lower emotions together are called the Kama Rupa. Also, the higher and lower life-force together are called the Linga Sarira. Sometimes the will power of the dead human was so powerful that these “lower” aspects of the Kama Rupa and Linga Sarira refuse to be recycled by mother nature. When this happens, even though the soul has departed the corpus these aspects pray upon the blood of the living in order to sustain their existence. From their graves they roam the land as “spectrals” at night in search of innocent victims. There are many documented cases of these vampire corpses being dug up from their graves only to discover that a 100 year old body is fresh and the flesh appears normal. The eastern European people and others have learned that the only way to recycle these “dead aspects” was to put a stake through their hearts once the graves were discovered.
